Cuteness overload.

17th of May 2018

Today is big religious holiday, so wasn't repair, some quiet time without headache. Also was sunny and I wanted to check if cozy writing is not for me now, what about cozy or cuteness overload sketching.

I used help of templates and started a sketchbook.

I all the time want to write something big and impressive and not such level of drafts see as weak. Probably could exist something simple and without important purpose.

I all the time try to climb a mountain, but top of it always in fog, I can't see what waits me there. I never know how will finish my text, even when outlined it. And in sketching you receive result, which is just pleasant and that's all, in that it's absolutely complete and that's enough.
